

Director – OECD Development Centre

A Paris based position with attractive remuneration package

Ref: 14028

The OECD's mission – Better Policies for Better Lives – is to promote policies that will improve the economic and social well-being of people around the world.

The OECD Development Centre (DEV) is a key player for OECD's work on sustainable development in non-member economies and within the OECD Development Cluster for the OECD's work on international development.

DEV works to support developing countries and emerging economies find innovative policy solutions to promote sustainable development, reduce poverty and inequalities, address gender equality and improve people's lives. The Centre brings together 56 member countries and facilitates policy dialogue between governments, involving public, private and philanthropic actors. Countries from Africa, Asia and Latin America participate as full members in the Centre, where they interact on an equal footing with OECD members.

The OECD is looking for a visionary and innovative Director, with proven experience in working with and in developing countries as well as with a sound knowledge of the Development Centre's areas of work. As a key member of the Organisation's Senior Management team, s/he will provide strategic management and orientation and will advance the Centre's work programme. S/he will support the Governing Board of the Centre (GB) to carry out its mandate to help its members in sharing their experience of economic and social development policies and to help decision makers find policy solutions to improve living conditions in developing and emerging economies.

The ideal candidate will provide intellectual leadership and will demonstrate innovative strategic thinking, strong communication skills and a track record of managing international teams.

This position requires fluency in one of the two OECD official languages (English and French) and a good working knowledge of, or willingness to learn, the other.

Applications from OECD or DEV member country nationals should be submitted online by cob 17 January 2021.
